

Use of cell phones would be annoying, especially if the person next to you was talking while you were trying to sleep. Cell phone conversations would keep a person from hearing the Captain and possibly any announcement regarding instructions. Use of cell phones during flights could be dangerous if someone was asked to please be quieter and that person had a temper -- could promote "air rage." Since planes have phones, I don't see any need for cell phones to be used.